Key Findings of The Ad Hoc Budget Committee

- The committee can work to develop long range budgeting for both operations and capital expenses, and to communicate with taxpayers in terms they can understand and believe.

- The City provides two major benefits to taxpayers: physical infrastructure (streets, sewers, lighting) and human services (police, fire, community services, and library). Current levels of taxes will not support current levels of service. The community's expectations for proactive and efficient services will not be maintained without increased taxes.

- Long deferred improvements and major overhauls are needed for deteriorating streets, water and sewer systems.

- State mandated employee retirement contributions will increase by 30% in two years.

- If taxes do not support these items, services will have to be cut.

- The most significant areas for cost reductions are the police, fire, and library departments that constitute almost 70% of the City's operating budget.

- The community would not support cuts in these important departments.

- There ought to be frank, public discussion about the wage and benefit level the City wants to offer its employees compared to comparable cities.

- Key issues need to be prioritized and an action plan developed and maintained by the City Council.

- A review should be conducted of all user fees to assure cost coverage.

- Business as usual is not an option for the City.

A copy of the report is available at the City Clerk's office, (626) 403-7230.

State Budget Uncertainties Affect City Revenues

Despite significant financial challenges, the City Council adopted a $27,566,824 budget for FY 2003-2004 that keeps basic services in place. Some modifications may be required, however, since any approved state budget scenario will likely include significant reductions in revenues to local jurisdictions.

In this economic climate, where many cities have been forced to make major service and staff reductions, it is a major accomplishment to design and adopt a budget without major decreases in services and programs. We have learned from past and present State budget crises that the Legislature's budget ax will continue to impact cities disproportionately, and we can predict that the future holds even more serious challenges for South Pasadena. In addition, due to dramatic declines in the stock markets, the City's contributions to police and fire personnel retirement costs will increase by as much as $770,000 in 2005. The City Council was forced to reject proposals for compensation packages from employee bargaining groups. In some cases, salary increases were last granted to employees more than three years ago.

Before adopting the budget, the City Council appointed a nine-member ad hoc committee to review and make recommendations regarding the City's budget format as well as proposed revenues and expenditures. In a multi-page report to the City Council, the committee made several important conclusions. The first is that the City's current revenue sources are not sufficient to sustain City services as currently provided. New revenue sources will be needed even to retain current services, and especially to provide additional basic services, such as street and sidewalk improvements. The community takes pride in being a full-service city — with high expectations for individualized customer services offered by its own police and fire departments. The committee also recommended long-term financial forecasting and policy analysis of service priorities. The results of these forecasts will be presented at public meetings in the fall.

Other highlights of the City Council budget discussions included the need to closely examine the fee structure to make sure that the fees charged actually cover the City's costs. The budget committee favors increasing sewer and water fees to fund these much-needed improvements to ensure safe, reliable drinking water and sewer systems. Accordingly, the City Council adopted a revised fee schedule in August.

New Community Redevelopment Commission Established

In recognition of the significance of downtown South Pasadena, the City Council has established a seven-member Community Redevelopment Commission (CRC). The CRC will act as an advisory board to the City Council and Community Redevelopment Agency on matters regarding planning and development of downtown, and use of redevelopment and housing set aside funds.

The redevelopment area is bordered by Fair Oaks, Mission Street, Fremont or Mound Avenues, and Monterey Road or Lyndon Street, and includes both Rite Aid and the Bristol Farms Centers. South Pasadena has used different forms of advisory and decision-making bodies since the inception of the Redevelopment Agency in 1953, including a redevelopment commission from 1985-1988.

The newly appointed commissioners are Ernie Arnold, Ellen Daigle, Karen Durfee, Patricia Ford, Peter Kwong, Cary Lowe and John Vandercook. There will be a joint study session of the City Council and CRC to kick off the commission's responsibilities on September 10 in the Library Community Room. For further information, call the City Clerk's office at (626) 403-7230.

Planning News — Grant Awarded to Complete Historic Inventory Survey

The City of South Pasadena Planning Department was awarded a second Certified Local Government (CLG) grant for $8,000 to fund the second segment of the survey and analysis of the City's Cultural Heritage Inventory. The first CLG grant was awarded in 2002 for $20,000.

Help Prevent Polluted Storm Water Runoff

You know those rectangular openings found in curbs throughout the City? They're called 'catch basins' — South Pasadena has several hundred of them. Chances are your home or business isn't located too far from one.

Catch basins are an important component of our flood-control system and come in various sizes and shapes all with the same function — to catch storm water and send it to the ocean through an underground network of pipes and tunnels. Storm-water runoff in South Pasadena flows into the Los Angeles River, which also acts as a flood-control channel, before being discharged into the ocean.

Unfortunately, catch basins also transport polluted runoff to the river and ocean. Pollutants include oil and other automotive fluids, paint and construction debris, yard and pet wastes, pesticides and trash.

Each day in Los Angeles County, 100 million gallons of polluted urban runoff enter the ocean untreated, leaving toxic chemicals in our surf and over 4,300 tons of trash on our beaches.

Runoff pollution contaminates the ocean, closes beaches, harms aquatic life and increases the risk of flooding by clogging gutters and catch basins.

What can you do?

- Sweep-up trash and debris (never flush with water into the street or catch basin).
- Store trash and other pollutant materials in a manner that prevents contact with rain (in a container with a closed lid or under cover).
- Recycle used oil, concrete, broken asphalt, metals, etc.
- Avoid applying pesticides, fertilizers and other chemicals during the wet season (October through May).
- Never dump materials into the storm-drain system (street, gutters, catch basins).
- Report illicit discharges to 1.888.CLEANLA.

People, Pooches, and Parks—Know the New Rules!

After extensive public input, the City Council adopted a new law that allows dogs in all city parks, subject to the following restrictions:

- Your dog must be kept on a leash no more than six feet long and held by a person capable of controlling the dog
- The leash cannot be connected to a post, bench, tree or other stationary object
- Dogs are prohibited from being on any playground, tennis court, volleyball court, basketball court, skate area, batting area or city-established picnic area
- You must clean up after your dog within five minutes
- Dogs are not permitted in Garfield Park on the Fourth of July or during Concerts in the Park

The City will be installing new signs and bag dispensers to allow owners to clean up after their dogs. For more information, please call the South Pasadena Police Department at (626) 403-7270.

Local History Video

The library recently received a grant from the California Council for the Humanities that was matched by the Friends of South Pasadena Public Library and the South Pasadena Preservation Foundation. The grant enables the library to accomplish several local history projects.

The library is conducting video oral-history interviews of a select population of residents to be placed in local archives. Portions of these interviews will be made available on the Internet, or for check-out on CD or DVD.

In addition to the interviews, the library is creating a DVD of South Pasadena history, including a 45-minute film and many special features of particular historical significance. The DVD will be delivered free of charge to South Pasadena teachers to be used in their classrooms.

The DVD will also be available for purchase in the Friends of South Pasadena Public Library Bookstore, and at various local events. There is a limited number of DVDs available for purchase. If you would like to be placed on a purchase list, please contact Rebecca Groeneveld at (626) 403-7325.

Library's iBistro Serves Up Complete Web Menu of Historical Materials

Have you seen the new web-based catalog at the South Pasadena Public Library? Last fall, the library purchased 'iBistro.' With this innovative system, you can look up books, place holds on items and check your account from either the library's terminals — or from home!

But even more exciting is what the iBistro catalog will offer this fall. The library has received grant funding over the past several years from the California State Library to organize, process and digitize the library's local historical photo collection. In addition, the library has purchased software to house, catalog and display the digital format of photos that will be searchable in the library catalog, as well as accessible over the Internet.

The library continually adds materials to its historical archives that have been donated by patrons. If you have photos, letters or memoirs you would like to see as part of the City's history collection, there are several options. You may donate your individual or collection of items — donors will be properly noted in the catalog. Alternatively, if you would like to hold onto your items, consider loaning them for a short period so the library can scan and/or transcribe the items, then return the originals to you.

So swing by the library and let iBistro enhance your learning experience!

Overnight Parking Permits: One Per Household

The Overnight Parking Ordinance was amended to allow residents of single-family dwellings to purchase one annual permit without the need for an inspection; however, it limits monthly permits to one per residence at a time. South Pasadena has prohibited overnight parking without a permit since 1953, and has made several changes in the system over the years. For more information, please call the South Pasadena Police Department at (626) 403-7270.
